Proverbs

Recently I read an article by Dr. Jeff Mirus entitled, Proverbs, read spiritually. The author informs his readers that the book of Proverbs is an instruction on the art of right living. Dr. Mirus states in his article that “the Book of Proverbs deals with the full range of life, from the spiritual heights to the pragmatism of daily life.” The Book of Proverbs is about everything.

The same can be said about the Book of Psalms which addresses every human emotion from life to death, to forgiveness and sin, love and hate. Every human emotion that we experience can be found in the Book of Psalms.

I would encourage you to pick up the Sacred Scriptures (the Bible) and open it to either the Book of Proverbs or the Book of Psalms and use them as a form of meditation. In the hustle and bustle of our lives we need to take some time to step out of our day to day life and reflect upon our lives in light of the situation that we find ourselves in.

Dr. Mirus suggests that the Proverbs found between chapters 17 and 26 are of the greatest spiritual interest. With regards to the Book of Psalms each psalm lends itself to a deeper reflection and allows that reader to center his or her attention on a power that is much greater than us, namely God.

You have heard me say so often, that God has a plan for each one of us and He does. It may not be the plan we envision for ourselves. We need to see God’s hand in our lives and the many ways that He blesses and enriches our lives with the people and experiences that we find ourselves dealing with. I am reminded of a saying that I heard many years ago which helps me to keep my life centered. Do you want to make God laugh! Tell Him your plans for the day.

I would also like to invite everyone to a one friar play entitled More Love than Skill, a play about the life of Fr. Solanus Casey. It will take place at Sts. Cyril and Methodius Church. There are two performances Saturday, October 22nd, at 7:00pm and Sunday, October 23rd at 3:00pm. This is the first of several Family of Parishes events scheduled for this year.

Bon mot: Mark Twain once said, most people are bothered by those passages of Scripture they cannot understand: but as for me, I have noticed that the passages that trouble me the most are the one I do understand.

Have a great day
Carpe Diem,
Fr. Tony

Today we hear the parable of the Pharisee and the tax collector, Jesus' response to those who looked down on anyone who did not keep the law and who were convinced of their own self-righteousness. Jesus clearly indicates that both the Pharisee and the tax collector are sinners, even though they are very different. We are all sinners; it is in this recognition that we can relate to Jesus and acknowledge our need for his love and mercy. Of the two men, only one is honest and approaches God with humility. The Pharisee, who "spoke this prayer to himself" (Luke 18:11) and about himself, boasts of his fasting and almsgiving, not recognizing the sin in his self-pride and his scorn for others. He places himself above others, pointing out the worst of the worst, the lowly tax collector. At the time, a tax collector not only collected what the Roman government demanded in tax, but also added on extra to make a profit for himself. Ironically, he is probably right about the dishonesty of the tax collector. But before God, the tax collector is brutally honest, and repentant as well. The Pharisee, acting as though he is good as is and needs nothing from God, gets nothing. The tax collector, admitting his need for God's mercy, is heard.

As we hear in the first reading today, from the Book of Sirach and in Psalm 34, the Lord hears the cry of the poor, but it is not only those in material poverty whose cries are heard. The tax collector was probably well off, as he was likely earning income from both the government and from the people he cheated. However, he was poor in spirit, in need of God's bountiful mercy. Jesus identifies with the poor and, for our sake, became poor, but in another sense. God chose to become poor to share in our humanity, to suffer with us, to accompany us as we carry our own crosses. God heard all these cries, because all of them came to God in humility, acutely aware of their dependence upon God.

We are all dependent on God, not ourselves. Our ego often leads us to believe that it is by our own efforts that we exist and prosper, yet we cry out to God asking "why?" when our efforts fall short of our established mark. We are all children of God, made in God's image, and we depend on God's love and mercy. There is a lot to unpack in these readings today, especially as it pertains to our own self-righteousness. This week, consider spending time in reflection on today's readings, exploring these questions: How do I see myself dependent upon God? Do I pray humbly, recognizing my dependence on God?
