For Whom the Bells Toll

I would like to wish all of you a Happy Labor Day. It is, as you know, the last holiday that brings summer to a close. May we take some time to enjoy our family and friends, to reconnect with nature, and to reflect upon the many ways that God has blessed our life. God is good all the time, God is good.

Labor Day affords us the opportunity to reflect upon the many blessings God has bestowed upon each of us. To see God's handiwork in all that we do and create with the gifts and talents that God has gifted us and encourages us to use for His greater glory and for the benefit of all of us. We all have value and we all contribute in our own way to the betterment of our society and the world.

As students and teachers prepare to return to the classroom this academic year, may we as a community of faith, offer to them our prayers and blessing that they, students, and teachers alike may enjoy learning and take delight in new discoveries and share those experiences with others. We also remember parents, who are the first teachers of the faith, that their faith and love may be an example to their children and the community. May you experience wonderment and awe in each passing day. This is the day the Lord has made let us rejoice and be glad. As they prepare for a new school year we offer them this blessing:

Lord our God

In your love and wisdom you surround us with the mysteries of the universe.

In times long past you sent us your prophets to teach your laws and to bear witness to your undying love.

You sent your Son to teach us by word and example that true wisdom comes from you alone.

Send your Holy Spirit upon these students and their teachers and fill them with your wisdom and blessing.

Grant that during the academic year they may devote themselves to their studies and share what they have learned from others.

We pray this through Christ our Lord. (The Book of Blessings.)

Bon mot: The distance we have gone is less important than the direction in which we are going. Live seeking God, then you will not live without God.

--- Leo Tolstoy, Spiritual Writings.

Carpe Diem,
Fr. Tony

"Work is fundamental to the dignity of a person. Work, to use an image, 'anooints' us with dignity, fills us with dignity, makes us similar to God, who has worked and still works, who always acts..."

- Pope Francis, Feast of St. Joseph the Worker and World Labor Day, 5/1/13

On this Labor Day weekend, let us be mindful of the importance of work from a Catholic viewpoint. Last year we created an informative video on this topic, you can find it at sjfparish.org/thewayoffaith. In addition, here are some thoughts from the USCCB on the dignity of work:

- In the Catholic tradition, work is more than a way to make a living; it is a form of continued participation in God's creative action. As we mark Labor Day each year, we are invited in a special way to reflect on the persistence of low wages and inequality in our workplaces. (In your own experience of work)—in an office setting, serving others, as a student, or working in the home—how have you experienced work as a form of participation in God's creative action? How are persistent low wages a barrier to full participation in that creative action? What can you do to support workplaces built upon justice and dignity?
- Catholic teaching tells us that not only are workers due a "just wage" with which they can provide for their families' needs; they also deserve opportunities for rest and dignity-affirming benefits such as quality health care and paid time off. In addition, work should be something that enhances one's human dignity (see Compendium of the Social Doctrine of the Church, nos. 284, 287, 301, 302).
- The experience of many workers in low wage jobs tells us that we must give serious consideration to how we can address areas of inequality in our economic systems. We are called to prioritize the well-being of the human person over the capital they produce (see St. John Paul II in Laborem Exercens, no. 12, on "The Priority of Labor"). In our country today, corporate consolidation of wealth and power in monopoly organizations has led to lower wages for workers. Lower wages mean many workers cannot sufficiently provide for their families or fully participate in the economy and society (see St. John Paul II in Centessimus Annus, no. 48).
- Catholic teaching holds that central to promoting the dignity of work and rights of workers is building solidarity with and among workers. The Church has long looked towards the important role played by labor unions in the effort to protect the needs and rights of workers in situations of inequality and injustice (see Compendium of the Social Doctrine of the Church, no. 305).

Amid the sales and celebrations of this Labor Day, spend some time in reflection on the nature of work and the dignity of workers. Where do you see the dignity of work and the rights of workers being violated? Where do you see it being protected? How will your purchasing and voting choices impact whether the rights of workers are violated or protected?
